John Q. Public Asks Questions On Sewer Levy

City officials attempted today to answer some of the questions in the mind of John Q. Public regarding the one-mill sewer levy which will be on the ballots at Tuesday's general election.

Passage of the levy, for a two-year period, will raise revenue for much-needed storm water sewer improvements in Salem and will insure the completion of the large S Broadway outlet into the county ditch.

Six questions and answers appear in today's News. Six more will be carried Monday.

If the public has still other questions concerning the sewer or levy, members of the sewer committee of city council will be glad to answer them. The voters may call either Harry Vincent, Fred Miller or A. P. Morris, or City Engineer F. S. Barkhoff.

GERMANS PUSH CRIMEA DRIVE

Battle Becomes Increasingly Dangerous, Soviet Says

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Nov. 1.—Russian military dispatches declared today that the battle at the approaches to the Crimea had become increasingly critical, with the Germans continuing to widen the gap they drove through the defense line across the Perekop isthmus.

A mighty new offensive against Moscow also was predicted and Pravda, organ of the Communist party, said the Germans had brought up reserves and were ready to spring the onslaught soon.

Great danger to the munitions making center at Tula, 100 miles south of the Soviet capital, was acknowledged by Red Star, organ of the Soviet army, a Reuters dispatch said.

Red Star also was quoted as the source of the reports that the Germans continued to widen their Crimean breach.

(A British radio broadcast heard by CDS said the Russians apparently had checked the German thrust 25 miles south of the narrow Perekop isthmus, which links the peninsula with the mainland.)

The German high command has said its break through the Perekop defenses was complete and that Nazi units were advancing steadily through more open country in pursuit of the Russians.

Red Star said the Germans had penetrated to the suburbs at the outskirts of Tula and reported that fighting was going on in the streets with workers leaving factories to bolster defense lines.

The Russians were said to be carrying out an orderly retreat under cover of rear guard action, against numerically superior Nazi forces.

SALEM GROUP WILL HELP IN BENEFIT

Mrs. Esther Odoran and a group of Salem entertainers will assist in the benefit performance to be given tonight in Youngstown by Steve Downer, 17, son of Dr. Downer, to raise funds to provide Thanksgiving baskets for the needy there.

Mrs. Odoran will direct the chorus and play for the show. Baby Leo Copacia, and his father Leo Copacia, will appear in a specialty. Jean Lou Driscoll and Eldon Gibbons are scheduled for two duets and will also take the leads in a special sketch.

The cast will include many of Youngstown's best juvenile performers.

LIGHT VOTE INDICATED TUESDAY

HEAVY TOLL IS FEARED IN SHIP SINKING

44 Enlisted Men Rescued
To Date, Is Navy's
Announcement

THINK 7 OHIOANS
ARE CREW MEMBERS

Days Expected to Elapse
Before Complete Check
Is Possible

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Heavy loss of life in the torpedo sinking of the U. S. Destroyer Reuben James was feared today even after the navy announced that 44 enlisted men had been rescued.

That left some 76 members of the ship's company unaccounted for, since about 120 officers and men formed the normal complement of the vessel which was sunk Thursday night on convoy duty west of Iceland.

Seven Ohioans were believed to be crewmen on the Reuben James. They were:

James Brantley Clark, 20, electrician, Akron.

C. C. Hayes, 19, seaman, Akron.

Joseph Hajoway, 21, Akron.

Herbert Burrell, 18, Cleveland.

Roy Virgil Bush, 18, oiler, Ash-tabula.

Carl E. Cooperider, 21, seaman, Bucyrus.

Corwin Porter, 21, gunner, Wau-seon (may not have been on last cruise because of an injury).

Taking as hopeful a view as was possible under the circumstances, naval authorities here speculated that some additional survivors might have been picked up by other elements of the convoy. If so, it might be several days before a complete check could be obtained on the entire personnel, because ships in combat zones use their radio only for the most urgent communications.

The Reuben James, built 21 years ago, was of far less advanced design than the U. S. Destroyer Kearny which made port successfully after surviving a torpedo hit Oct. 17 in the same general area of the North Atlantic. The Kearny is clad with the latest armor and its hull is divided into watertight compartments, but even so 11 men were killed and 10 were wounded by the smashing underwater attack.

Two motor whaleboats, at least six life rafts and ample life preservers were carried aboard the Reuben James, lending some hope to the anxious families of men known to have been aboard her.

The latest official word was this, released by the navy last night:

The navy department has received a report that 44 members of the crew of the U. S. S. Reuben James have been rescued. The survivors who have been accounted for are all enlisted men.

"The navy department has no further information at this time, but additional details will be released when received."

Officers Named
At the same time, the navy made public the names of the senior officers who were aboard the destroyer. Lieutenant Commander Heywood L. Edwards, 35, of San Saba, Texas, was in command. The others were Lieutenant Benjamin Ghet-zler, 34, Annapolis, Md.; Lieuten-

NO ONE IS INJURED IN TRAFFIC CRASH

No one was reported injured last night when a car driven by William Beech, 40, of Leetonia, and a dairy truck operated by Dayton Hart of Beaver Falls Pa., collided on Route 14, three miles east of Columbiana, the state patrol reported.

Rev. J. Morgan Cox, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Lisbon, escaped unhurt when the blinding lights of an approaching car forced him to drive his car into a ditch on Route 45 near here last night.

DEPUTY ARMSTRONG TAKES JOB IN MILL

LISBON, Nov. 1.—Deputy Sheriff John Armstrong of East Liverpool tendered his resignation on Friday to Sheriff George Hayes, effective as of Oct. 31, in order that he might accept a position as millwright with the Treadwell Construction Co. of Midland, Pa.

Armstrong, who was appointed to the deputyship on July 1, 1941, filling a vacancy created by the resignation of Deputy Thomas Russell, expects to take up his new duties immediately.

HIGHWAY WORKERS ASK PAY INCREASE

Petition for Higher Hourly Wages and Overtime Compensation

LISBON, Nov. 1.—State highway department employees met here last evening to study proposals seeking an increase in the hourly wage scale paid laborers and truck drivers in Columbiana county.

There were more than 40 highway workers present at the meeting, held in court room No. 2, when a report of the representative of the group, who had presented a petition to H. G. Sours, state director of highways, was made.

In the petition presented to Director Sours, state highway department workers in the county had asked for a parity wage scale with adjoining, comparative counties, and also payment for extra work, or overtime.

Spokesmen for the group stated that whereas highway employees in comparative adjoining counties receive from 55 to 70 cents per hour, state road employees in this county are receiving but 50 cents. In addition, it was stated, the men are not receiving even straight time compensation for overtime work.

According to spokesmen, Director Sours promised the men pay for any overtime, and also stated the matter of parity wages with other counties would be given consideration.

Electors Must Sign Names Tuesday Under New Ruling

Voters here and in other non-registration areas must sign their names and addresses in a poll list book before they will be handed ballots at the general election Tuesday.

This is in compliance with a newly enacted Ohio law which becomes effective for the first time at the Nov. 4 balloting. Each and every voter must sign his or her name and address at the proper place in the poll list book provided therefore, which shall be alphabetically indexed, before receiving the ballot or ballots.

The board of elections instructions to presiding judges and clerks in this matter reads:

"When an elector appears in the polling place to vote, he shall announce his full name and address to the judge in charge of the ballots, and in non-registration precincts upon request of the presiding judge he shall state the county, township and precinct of his residence. He shall then write his or her name and address at the proper place in the poll list book provided therefore, which shall be alphabetically indexed, before receiving the ballot or ballots."

Hammondsville Girl Cited For Heroism

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1.—A 13-year-old Ohio girl who risked her life to rescue an infant brother from an enraged sow was cited for heroism last night by the Carnegie Hero Fund commission.

The commission awarded a bronze medal to Norma Ann Bedell of Rural Route 1, Hammondsville, Jefferson county, who was attacked by the hog and received gashes in her side and abdomen that sent her to bed for a week.

The brother, James, 22 months old, also was injured.

The incident occurred last June 12. Here is the commission's account:

"James entered a barn in which Norma was driving cows. A sow that had a litter of pigs entered the barn and attacked James, who lay on his back, his head covered with blood. Norma ran to the sow and pushed against its shoulder and it backed three feet.

"Lifting James, Norma tossed him into a box three feet above the floor. The sow then charged Norma; she pushed against the sow's head, and it backed from her. Getting to her feet, she entered a near-by feed bin and tried to close the door. But the sow was in the way and it then tried twice to reach James.

"Getting hold of a pitchfork, Norma struck the sow several times and it backed away from James, who was lying from the box. James' mother then arrived and carried James from the barn. Norma ran out with her."

RAINY WEATHER
CANCELS PARADE

Rain last night forced a cancellation of Salem's annual Halloween parade and celebration.

Merchants waited as long as they could before calling off the event, hopeful that the downpour might cease.

Bad weather also erased the scheduled Halloween performance of the High school band and football halves at the Salem-Niles football game. The only ceremony at the stadium was the recognition of the dads of the Salem players.

6 ASK PLACES ON LEETONIA BOARD

School Contest Is Principal Feature of Tuesday Balloting

LEETONIA, Nov. 1.—Democrats are anticipating an easy victory here Tuesday, since the Republicans have no candidates.

The only contest promised voters here will be the six-man race for three school board posts.

Mayor John A. Arnold is up for reelection. He has served since 1935 and was a member of the board of public affairs in 1932 and 1933. Mayor Arnold is foreman of the molding shop of the Crescent Machine Co.

J. A. McCue is a new candidate for the clerk's post, which his brother, J. S. McCue, will abandon because of ill health. The former once served as treasurer.

The treasurer's office is sought by Paul Sevensch, who unseated the incumbent, Lester H. Fisher, in the August primary. Mr. Sevensch is an employee of the Standard Supply Co.

Council Candidates
The six candidates for as many council posts are:

Clarence Barnes, employee of the Crescent Machine Co.; Lawrence F. Berg, sales representative of the Berg Pretzel Co.; Andrew J. Duko, Mellinger Lumber Co. employee; Joseph A. Sevensch, painter and political newcomer; Walter Tour-dout, service station operator, and Carl H. Varian, former railway employee who operates a school bus.

HOLD FUNERAL FOR JOSEPH W. WARE, 101

Word has been received by relatives in this vicinity of the death of Joseph W. Ware, 101, a native of Patmos, at his home in Puyallup, Ore., last Sunday.

A Civil War veteran, Mr. Ware moved to the west in 1898. He was a bee keeper. During the Civil War he served with Company C, 17th Ohio Volunteer regiment. His first wife, Hannah, died 37 years ago.

Survivors include his second wife, two daughters, Mrs. Daisy Sturdevant of Rainer, Ore., Mrs. Nettie Dushman of Port Angeles, Ore.; four sons, Emory of Arizona, William of Hadley, Pa., George of Damascus and Pearson of Beloit.

The funeral service was held Tuesday at Puyallup, with burial in Orting, Wash.

CANDIDATES WINDING UP CAMPAIGNS

Will Devote Attention On Monday to Getting Out the Vote

SCHOOL BOARD RACE
DRAWING INTEREST

City Officials Appeal For Support of Sewer
Levy

Twenty-five candidates today were preparing to wind up one of the quietest off-year election campaigns in Salem's history.

Officials of both the Republican and Democratic parties, however, are expected to busy themselves Monday in completing plans for getting as many voters as possible out to the polls on Tuesday. The vote is expected to be light if interest stays at its present low ebb.

Robert R. Johnson, insurance agent, Perry township justice of the peace and mayor from 1914 to 1917, is the Republican candidate for mayor. He is opposed by Austin I. Getz, former Columbiana county commissioner, who was drafted by the Democrats after Mayor Norman Phillips decided against a second term.

The Democrats filled virtually all of their tickets at the primary election on a "write-in" campaign. There were only a few Republican contests at the primary.

C. F. Zimmerman, present first ward councilman and veteran city legislator, is the Republican candidate for president of council. He will be opposed by Louis J. Grisez, Democrat.

Republican Slate
The Republican slate also includes:

Solicitor: Henry L. Reese, incumbent.

Treasurer: Orvil C. Hoover, incumbent.

Councilman-at-large: Charles Rheutan and Harry Vincent, seeking re-election, and Fred A. Shaffer, pottery worker. Vincent also is a potter. Rheutan is employed by the Deming Co.

First ward: H. W. Pealy, lodge steward.

Second ward: Arch H. Wentz, linotype operator.

Third ward: E. Frederick Filler, pottery worker.

Fourth ward: Arthur L. Hanna, grocery clerk.

Programs Arranged For Girl Scout Week

The annual observance of Girl Scout week, Nov. 2-8, will be marked by the more than 100 scouts and leaders of the city in individual troop programs and by the entire organization at a party at 3:45 p. m. Monday in the Memorial building.

Ministers in the various churches tomorrow will speak of the movement, its founding and growth and its value as a youth training aid.

The party Monday is one of many being held throughout the week's observance which is a tribute to Juliette Lowe, founder of the movement.

Girl Scouts and their friends contribute each year to a Juliette Lowe memorial fund which is used to promote friendliness and understanding between the girls of this and other nations by the maintenance of a summer camp near Pleasantville, N. Y., where, before the war, 28 countries and every one of the 48 states were represented by the Girl Scouts there.

BUT WAS ANYTHING SETTLED?

Eight years ago there was a strike in the so-called captive coal mines of the steel industry. On Oct. 30, 1933, the management of the mines agreed to let workers elect representatives of their own choosing, and the strike was called off a few days later.

That strike, like the one just called off, was caused by the attempt to force upon the captive mines the same condition of union recognition as obtained in other coal mines. The steel industry fought back for union control of the mines would be used to bring the same reasons both times, too. It was afraid that about union control of the whole industry.

To the relief of everybody concerned, probably including John L. Lewis who used the organization he built up in 1933 to do it, the captive mine strike that threatened to paralyze the steel industry has been called off. The mediation board will try to patch things up; perhaps it will get further than the representatives of management and the organized miners were able to get in their discussions last summer and fall. It is unlikely that anything will be settled, however.

John L. Lewis, backed by United Mine Workers, still can be counted on to try to do to the steel industry as a labor leader what he says he thinks J. P. Morgan shouldn't have the right to do as a financial leader; namely, get things arranged so when he says, "Scat!" the whole industry will scat. In a controversy featured by lost tempers, bitter words and bated breaths—now that things have dropped below the boiling point perhaps it may be suggested that there is an almost humorous similarity of earnestness between Mr. Lewis and his highly realistic adversaries.

CORRUPTION OF AN IDEA

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, a kindly man according to reports, admits that he is planning to shoot Santa Claus on Christmas eve. Of course he doesn't say so in that many words, but the impact on listeners is no less for that reason. The listeners are hearing that the social security program is going to be tied up like a Siamese twin with the federal tax program. Mr. Morgenthau has made a public announcement to that effect.

It's not the details but the principle that must be considered first. Social security was sold to the public as a lot-for-a-little proposition—almost a something-for-nothing setup. The government was going to collect all that money from employers and employees, salt it away and pay it back with interest when it was needed. It wasn't quite as good as the Townsend plan, but it was good enough to spike Do-Townsend's guns.

First came the shock of realizing that nothing was going to be salted away but federal IOU's showing where and how the money had been used for operating expenses. Then came the shock of realizing that there was very little difference between paying out money one way and paying it out another way; the money was gone just the same. And now comes the shock of realizing that the spenders can look without apology on the wage earner storing away a few social security units in Washington in case of a long hard winter and say, "Paster, please, we are in urgent need of more nuts down here."

THE WEATHER IN TRANSITION

With October gone there is no use kidding any more. The weather has passed its 50th birthday, so to speak. It is past both its springtime and its summertime. Its winter solstice may still be a safe distance away, but the autumnal equinox is rapidly becoming a distant memory too.

The sun gradually has been absenting itself, until the days when it shines become the exceptions, rather than the rule. There are occasional moments of deadly silence when the sound of one third would be like a pealing carillon at midnight. The leaves are all gone, and the place where the last rose of summer died is marked by a hardy aster and a gaunt company of cosmos.

Hope abides only in the souls of those who have learned the secret of adjusting themselves to their environment, which shortly will be one of slush, of howling winds, stinging sleet, powdery snow, or perhaps the ordinary wet variety, the customary epidemics and overcoats, overshoes, earmuffs and mittens. Such persons are the flower of civilization, no doubt of it, and the rest of us gladly acknowledge their superiority because that leaves us free to wish for blue skies and sunshine.

ALL OUT OF STEP

The earnest experts who specialize in causes and cures for human behavior must take note of Cleveland, which has been trying to persuade its motorists to make left-hand turns the way almost everybody else makes them. The rotary turn for which Cleveland is famous, traffic-wise, is as old-fashioned as the carbide lamp, yet Clevelanders refuse to give it up. For years their police department merely suggested to them slyly that if they wanted to give it up there'd be no complaints. Clevelanders spurned that temptation; they weren't even interested in breaking the law. Then the state legislature adopted a uniform traffic code and Cleveland decided to do something positive about its rotary turn. It would educate its motorists.

That was early in September. According to one of those public opinion polls, 52 percent of Cleveland's male drivers and 70 percent of the city's drivers still prefer to rotarize. The women are more devoted to the old ways than the men, it seems, which possibly throws some light on why the proverbial woman driver still clings to the giddy and whoa technique of operating an automobile.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, November 2

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is rather encouraging, with all affairs of church and the clergy under benign rule for advancement, financial stability and an all-round expansion and growth. Social, affectional, domestic and cultural affairs are under excellent prospects. But there is a sign of trickery, deception, schemes and fraud to be guarded against.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of definite expansion and growth, with the fulfillment of cherished hopes and wishes. Business, finances and credit also all social and heart interests, should flourish. But withal there is a sinister sign of deception, trickery and fraudulent transactions, especially in travel, correspondence, contracts or verbal agreements.

A child born on this day will have much talent and efficiency for success in life. It will be fortunate and enjoy personal popularity. But may be subject to betrayals, fraud and loss in its private and business affairs.

For Monday, November 3

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is not entirely favorable. While there are indications of a lively state of affairs, with much motion and activity in new directions, reforms and changes, yet there is a menace of questionable transactions, sinister plots or snares, ending disastrously. All pertaining to travel, correspondence, cultural and professional contacts thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a lively and eventful year, with strange or spectacular adventures adding zest to life. But in all there are pitfalls, snares and subtle conditions, so be alert. Personal correspondence may give pleasure, also artistic and professional associations, but shun intrigue or extravagance.

A child born on this day may have original talents, with much ingenuity and professional skill, but it may be an easy mark for designing plots and schemes. Its lively emotional nature may result in annoying heart affairs.

LIP READING IS PRACTICAL

Aid for Deafness Recommended by Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The committees of several cities have asked me to comment on the fact that they are forming lip-reading classes.

To learn lip reading is, I believe, the most practical solution of the problem of deafness. It requires some effort, and initiative. In this machine age it may seem an unnecessary trial when one can just hook a device on the ears. But machines are always unsatisfactory at best, and the greatest effort should be made to free oneself from relying on a machine.

need instruction in lip reading—children and adults—present different problems.

Deafness in Children
The problem in the case of children is to recognize that deafness exists. The highest percentage of both catarrhal and suppurative otitis media occurs in children before the fifth year. At that age the child may not have had any experience in acute hearing, at least acute enough to understand conversations, and so has no experience to compare with the state of being deaf.

He doesn't know anything is the matter with him. He therefore doesn't point out to teacher or parents that anything is the matter, and he may be allowed to drift indefinitely and be considered a backward and inattentive child in school and at home.

Of late years special tests are being applied to recognize these children in school and to help them compensate. They should be taught lip reading as early as possible when they are mentally resilient enough to learn readily.

It is estimated that there are over three million American school children who are partially deaf. One and a half per cent of all school children need some instruction in lip reading.

The Adults' Problem
With the other group of cases—the adults—the problem is not so much of finding the partially deafened individuals, but of impressing on them the necessity of learning lip reading. In the adult it is usually not an acute disease that initiates the deafness, but a very gradually appearing and almost imperceptible failure of acuity. "I believe I'm getting deaf," someone says half-jokingly, a fact that has been evident to acquaintances for some time.

Now the difficult thing for these unfortunate people to face and to realize is that in most instances the condition is progressive, and that they are going to get worse instead of better.

Must Face Realities
In order to make their future, they should take up lip reading at once, while they still have enough hearing to understand the lessons. Many of them fight this idea because they consider the condition temporary, and also because it is not as easy to learn lip reading at forty as it is for a child. But in facing the realities and in making the effort lies their future happiness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
H. B. S.: "What causes adhesions after appendicitis operations?"

Answer: The appendix lies inside the peritoneum, which is a delicate membranous tissue which scars very easily. Its purpose, when intact is to allow the abdominal organs to move and function smoothly.

After an appendectomy operation, the peritoneum is cut, and scar tissue forms and often attaches some organ to the inside of the abdominal wall. These attachments are called adhesions.

List Services At Christian Church

"Choosing Life On God's Level" is the subject of the sermon at the Christian church this Sunday. Services will begin at 10:30 with Pastor C. F. Evans delivering the sermon.

The theme has to do with human wants and what we are to do about them. Is life a matter of what we can get or what God wants of us? Successful living depends upon having the proper motive for life.

Sunday at 3 p. m. a musical concert will be presented by the choir at the Cedar Ave. Christian church, Cleveland. This is a choir of Negro singers, and the program will include a number of Negro spirituals. The public is invited. A free will offering will be received to help that church in a needed building project.

"Everlasting Punishment" Christian Science Topic

"Everlasting Punishment," is the subject of the lesson sermon which will be read at the morning worship of the Christian Science Society tomorrow at 11 a. m. The Sunday service is also broadcast on station WCLE 610 kil. Cleveland the 1st and 3rd Sundays of each month at 11 a. m. Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 12 years is held at 9:30 a. m. The midweek service is held the 1st Wednesday of each month at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text is: "Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people" (Proverbs 14:34).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God for he will abundantly pardon" (Isaiah 55:6,7).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The gross error is mortal mind. Hatred flames the brutal propensities. The influence of evil motives and aims makes any man, who is above the lowest type of manhood, a homeless sufferer" (p. 469).

This society maintains a Reading Room at 136 So. Broadway where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. Open from 1:30 to 4 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Saturday. A cordial invitation is extended to all, to attend the services and visit the Reading Room.

Why I Must Go To Church

Third Reason

Because of the Example of Jesus.

When we read the history of our Saviour in the Gospel, we find, that He always went to the house of the Lord on the Sabbath. If He was at Jerusalem, He spent the holy day in the temple. If at a distance from Jerusalem, He went to the synagogue in the nearest town. It is very plain from the Gospels, that He never made any exceptions to this established rule of His life.

There are many reasons for this custom of His life. His Father had commanded it. Jesus would rather die, than break a commandment of God. The heavenly Father had promised His blessing upon those who heard His Word. Jesus wanted to receive that blessing. One of the Saviour's chief reasons for going to the house of the Lord was, that He might set an example for us. True the chief purpose of His life was to be a sacrifice for our sins. But that holy life of His is intended also to be a pattern for our lives.

The example of Jesus teaches me, that I must go to church every Sunday. It is a day which has been set apart for the hearing of His Word in His holy house. If I go to church I am following in the footsteps of Jesus; I am walking on the safe path, which will bring me many blessings of God in this world, and lead me to heaven above. I must go to church; because I must follow in the footsteps of Him who loved me, and gave Himself for me.

Dr. C. E. Macartney to Speak Here

Pictured above is Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Pittsburgh, who will be guest speaker at the father and son banquet to be given by the First Presbyterian church at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Dr. Macartney, one of four brothers who became Presbyterian ministers, is a son of the late Dr. J. Robertson Macartney, one of the founders and for many years a member of the faculty of Geneva college in Beaver Falls, Pa.

In addition to his active pastoral duties, Dr. C. E. Macartney is a nationally known historian and lecturer and is considered one of the leading authorities on the Civil war era in American history. He is the author of 12 books on the war between the states, Abraham Lincoln, and the anti-slavery movement.

Dr. Macartney was given national recognition several years ago by the church when he was elected moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States.

He last visited Salem in 1932 when he spoke at the Centennial celebration of the Presbyterian church here.

Li one of his books Dr. Macartney refers to the prominence of Salem in the anti-slavery movement. He singularly pointed at that time to the city hall, ordered destroyed just yesterday, as the only local edifice remaining from that epic era.

Programs Arranged For Girl Scout Week

Monday, when an appropriate program and entertainment will be given.

The founder of the movement was born in Savannah, Ga., in 1830 and after her marriage to William Lowe she returned to her native England to make her home. In 1908 she met Robert Baden Powell, who founded the Boy Scout movement.

On her return to this country she organized the first Girl Scout troop among a group of young girls in Savannah. The fund was started in 1907 as a memorial to the woman whose interest in young people and in international good will created the largest and best known girls' organization in the world.

All Girl Scouts of the city, including those affiliated with the churches and the American Legion auxiliary are invited to attend the party Monday.

The girls of the individual troops will attend church service tomorrow, Girl Scout Sunday, at the churches with their troops are sponsored. The American Legion auxiliary troop will attend the Methodist church.

The Reuben James was the first United States warship to be sunk in the battle of the Atlantic. In fact, only one U. S. combat vessel, the Destroyer Jacob Jones, was sunk by torpedo during the World war, although a destroyer and a submarine went down after collisions, and the Cruiser San Diego sank after striking a mine.

The navy's laconic announcement of the attack on the Reuben James did not say whether the torpedo was launched by a submarine, plane or surface raider, but the general assumption was that the hit was scored by an undersea boat.

President Roosevelt had little comment on the incident at his press conference yesterday. He said the Reuben James was simply carrying out a duty assigned to her.

News of the sinking stirred members of congress into spirited declarations, and further verbal repercussions seemed likely today as the senate continued debate on modifying the neutrality act to permit the arming of U. S. merchantmen and the removal of restrictions which at present bar them from combat zones.

Not such a very long time ago the "undertaker" gave little thought to those who were left behind, and devoted himself solely to his simple duties in taking care of the one who had passed on.

All this is changed, now. Modern funeral directors, such as the Stark organization, hold to the idea that theirs is a service to the living—and every detail of their service proves that their prime purpose is to relieve the family of every care and worry, and to make the parting easier to bear.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

Mat Breanu's car smoothly crossed the George Washington Bridge. He and Kurt Helm had nothing more to say to one another. Reaching the creek, they saw the blue lights.

Breanu breathed out his relief. "It's O. K.," he said curtly.

A man with a flashlight streaked out on the desolate road. Breanu glared down. The man, in a guard's uniform, jumped on the running board, and gasped. "Boss, the blue signals are a trap. G-men have the place surrounded. Somebody's been vanishing into darkness."

Breanu stepped the big car so you'd scuffle-crossed me," he said to Helm. For a second, Kurt's narrow blond head seemed as a serpent's thrust forward at dark features.

Then they were out of the car, at gun-pointing each other for their lives.

The light was short on the lonely road over the creek. Treachery had crept through Mattila Breanu's world. He had known what he was doing when he jumped out of his car. He wanted to kill.

Who else but Kurt Helm could have betrayed him tonight? Even the blade he tried frantically to draw out from the ebony case failed him now. It stuck in the ground. Breanu left it in the car, and charged at Helm like a raging bull.

The blue light flickered on its pole to the arsenal some two miles away. Nothing else seemed to move along the dark meadowlands under crisp October stars.

Kurt dared not shoot. He fended off Breanu's attack, his supple figure incredibly agile as he shifted to and fro. He was younger than Breanu, and he could—but this was no place for murder, with the FBI and police on the hunt.

Breanu's savage hands obeyed no laws. They clawed for Helm's throat, missed, Helm darted to the left.

"Are you crazy?" he said in a low, bitter voice. "I didn't tip off anyone. You want us both caught?"

"Both?" Breanu's dark face was convulsed. "It's not going to be that way." He turned suddenly, with a violent push that sent Helm staggering back.

The powerful engines of the car still hummed. Breanu sprang behind the wheel. He nosed it straight at Helm, whose catlike speed saved him from being run down. Then Breanu was whizzing towards George Washington Bridge.

Helm had plunged himself to one side of the road. He regained his balance, his eyes slitted on the blue light which at that very second went out.

Someone had squealed; a woman, of course, because women fell in love with Breanu, and then turned on him. Not Jane Rider. She wasn't the type. But Fan Rubley would sell out any man, she was about to lose. Or—could it be Dick Garrison wanting to get rid of the Broadway "big shot" as a client who menaced the lawyer's reputation for honesty?

Pacing the road, Kurt planned his next move. The sensible thing to do was to clear up his affairs in Rockland County; drop the George Greens who had replaced the Switzers as a front and travel seaward, taking Jane Rider with him. His one last worry was the intimidating stuff against him, which Carlie had hidden. He would have to count on Switzer's search of Breanu's apartment tonight.

Helm lit a cigarette. Switzer had a stupid, bestial temper. He had killed his own wife, Anna. And naturally now, he would never dare disobey orders. Yes, everything was working out.

Breanu's plot to send arms to certain forces of revolution in Roumania had given Kurt Helm some definite ideas. Why bother with Europe when the ultimate sources were in this country? You could find able lawyers to defend groups accused of treason. And far-minded citizens saw justice done. You only had to learn the patter and wave the flag as a screen.

A car glided from the direction of the arsenal before Helm was aware of its cautious headlights. Four quiet, unsmiling men surveyed his trim, tweeded elegance. Helm's mind checked them. "Feds."

"Seen a guy drive by here?" the man at the wheel asked quite pleasantly. His eyes photographed Kurt Helm.

"He didn't drive by here?" Helm answered as pleasantly, waving toward the George Washington Bridge. "He saw me, and changed his mind." He added, on inspiration, "Dick Garrison posted me here. I was hoping some of you fellows would come along. I guess you know as much as I do."

"What do you know?" someone asked.

Helm smiled. "If you want to catch up with a fellow in a black limousine, you'd better hurry."

One of the men in the back climbed out, and studied the road with his searchlight which he presently switched onto Helm, who met its glare impassively.

"Get in," said the man behind the wheel. Helm got in. He leaned back between the two lads in the rear seat.

No one said anything until they turned on to upper Broadway. Then Helm yawned.

"I've got to go to Rio House and wait for Garrison. What do you boys say to a bite first? I'm all in." He pointed to the front lights of a restaurant. It was then past midnight.

No harm in a midnight snack. They stopped; got out, no longer so alertly watching Helm. He looked like their kind. And he was to meet Attorney Garrison at Rio House. Besides, they had the Breanu business in the bag.

Helm sat at the table and ordered for all of them. His treat. Then he excused himself; went to the washroom. He eased himself back, and strolled to the counter to buy cigarettes. He was there one moment and gone the next.

The four men at the table jumped up. But they were too late.

Kurt Helm grabbed a taxi. "Forty-second Street ferry. Two bucks if you hurry." The taxi man hurried.

When, later, the number of his cab was traced, the driver remembered a blond young man. That was all. But Helm, once on the ferry, knew he would have to make supreme haste.

Mattila Breanu entered his apartment slowly. He stood a moment without turning on the foyer light.

He had no more illusions. He had failed. If the "Feds" didn't get him soon, the agents of his Rumanian party would. He was done for, either way. And the little business men here, he had helped and used as a front, would be bitter. Why shouldn't they? He had lent them money from Rumanian revolutionary funds. That money would be collected by seal-eyed young men who had no personal grievance against the American government. But they would carry out orders. And Mattila had spent thousands, and then—not delivered the goods. Breanu's job had been to procure the arms, grease the route, and buy the captain of the tramp ship. Well, he'd done that, and now his never see it.

"Mr. Whiskers" as the Broadway mob called Uncle Sam.

He walked like an old man into the living room, fumbling for the lights. He flung his hat, coat and ebony stick on the nearest carved chair. Brooding, he stood between his two grand pianos, staring through the windows at the spread of Central Park, and the tall buildings beyond.

Mattila sighed. New York was beautiful. Life could be so good. He shouldn't have trusted Kurt Helm. He sighed once more with a little shrug. There had been very lovely women with him in this apartment in happier times. A pity Jane Rider, of the starchy brown eyes, would never see it.

He walked into the bedroom, and looked at Carlie's portrait. Yes, she was the loveliest of them all. She seemed to rest radiantly out of the frame, her gray eyes wide, her gray tulle light as foam. On the small table lay her black compact. Breanu kissed it as he would have kissed her hand.

Oh yes, he could fight; deny everything and have Attorney Garrison with him when they came to question—tonight?—tomorrow? But Carlie's murder hung over him. There was a knife, and the knife was in his heart. If he lived, fear must hang over him forevermore. He couldn't take it, he realized.

He went back into the living room. He wanted a drink; let it alone. He unsheathed the sword, and placed it beside him on the piano bench—the piano he and Carlie preferred. Her photograph in the silver frame laughed down at his dark, small figure.

Breanu played. The image of Fan Rubley came and vanished. He was sorry for her.

Had he been wrong from the start? Had his native or his adopted country ever betrayed him? What indeed had he not forsaken for a little power, money, and the hate he had let other men put in him!

It was late. He had little time. Doremus might return. Breanu looked around the room once more, and he listened.

Then he rose from the bench. He slowly unbuttoned his coat and opened his white shirt, baring the squared chest. Then he steadied the ebony crooked handle of the blade against the piano rack.

His dark liquid eyes were on Carlie's photograph. Slowly he impaled himself on the sharp steel. The agony was longer than he thought it would be—eternal seconds.

Then he stumbled; fell, overturning the piano bench. A white envelope was glued to the underside of the seat. But Mat couldn't see it, nor could he hear the scrape of Fan's key against the front door lock.

Fan Rubley trembled so, she could hardly unlock the door of Breanu's apartment. The key he had given her some months ago seemed to rebel against the woman who had betrayed him.

What had happened this terrible Sunday night after she had telephoned Richard Garrison, on waves of jealousy, passion and despair, telling all she knew about that rendezvous along the Jersey meadowlands; the gun-running planned from the junk arsenal? Mat would kill her if he ever found out who had given him away.

Fan fretted with the key. The lock usually worked smoothly. Perhaps they had already arrested Mat. She had to come and find out. I'll stand by him, no matter what happens, she thought. She, Fan Rubley—Fenia Rubinoff—whose race he hated—she'd stand by him. If she could forgive his hate, couldn't he forgive her?

Her teeth gripped her lower lip as she tried once more to open the door, controlling her shivers. She must have been crazy to tell Garrison. Why hadn't she remembered hints Carlie had let drop? This brilliant attorney, this courtly man-about-town, was something more than he appeared.

He would track down Carlie's murderer. And he would never spare anyone, even Carlie's husband, from the consequences of a grave and treasonable enterprise.

She gave a last twist to the key. The door opened. It was frightfully quiet in the foyer. Fan drew her white wrap closer in the sudden chill that enveloped her. Her round blue eyes stared at light in the living room. Someone must be here.

"Doremus!" Her choked voice was drowned in space. Then she remembered Doremus was out with her Selinda.

"Mat!" she cried, her tall body swaying in the shadows. She had often known fear, but never like this. "Mat." He wasn't here.

Fan forced her golden sandaled feet to move forward, step by step. At first, the living room seemed empty. No, not empty; Mat was there.

Fan's mouth opened on a frozen scream she never uttered. She saw his body drooped forward over the piano keys, skewered by the sword whose ebony sheath lay in a spreading stain under the pedals.

VOTE

This Year — Fellow Voter —

... we Americans lose interest in a small City election, because of the War and because it is an "off year". However, in view of the fact that America is about the only country left in the world where we can still choose our public officials, we should this year, above all years, exercise that right and go to the polls 100%.

While to some the election of City officials in a small town like Salem may seem unimportant, it is the thousands of towns like Salem that MAKE AMERICA and America can have good Government only if and when we have good government at home.

This sample ballot may assist you in voting. But regardless of the way you vote, we Democratic Candidates urge you and your family to exercise this year the privilege with which only Americans are blessed.

THE RIGHT TO VOTE

Niles High Dragons Smother Salem 26-0 On Muddy Field

POOR TACKLING, LACK OF DRIVE MARK SALEM PLAY

Dragons Smash Through Line to Totally Outdistance Quaker Squad

Again showing weakness in blocking and tackling, the Salem High Quakers last night let the Niles High Red Dragons plunge and slip through their line and secondary to score four touchdowns and a 26-0 victory on the water-soaked turf of Reilly field.

The game proved a blow in more than one way to the Quakers. Running back, a kickoff in the first quarter, Halfback Phil Cozad suffered a fracture of the right leg just above the ankle. Cozad took the ball on the 10-yard line and was cutting wide on the 30-yard line when he was tackled and injured.

"I thought I saw a hole over by the sidelines," Cozad said this morning, "but the other guy got there before I did."

He was removed to his home this morning and will be able to return to school on crutches in about one week.

week. A member of Coach Brown's basketball squad, he may be able to see action later in the season. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Cozad, 636 Park ave.

The Salemites failed to threaten at any time during the game and continually fought with their backs to the wall. DePaschal and Zorn reeled off long gains through tackle and end as they led the Dragons to a total of 10 first downs to one for Salem.

Defend Goal
On several occasions the Salem line performed with outstanding ability, rallying in the shadow of their goal posts to hurl back the invaders. They also held well on the majority of punting plays, allowing the Salem booter liberal time in which to get off a good kick. It was, possibly, this sense of false security that led Ruffing to try a kick after fumbling a bad pass from center in the second quarter. The kick was blocked and Devarich fell on it over the goal line for the second Niles marker.

For the first time this season, the Quakers failed to show their usual "zip." Always on the defensive, they refused to push the play and seemed content to keep Niles from scoring. Only one pass was attempted despite the obvious futility of trying to get through the heavy Niles line. (Salem's net play from scrimmage was a negative five yards.)

Several Salem substitutes looked impressive on the defensive, crashing through the line only to allow the Dragons to slip through their fingers. Ellis, King, Karlis and Guappone were, however, instrumental in smothering many Niles runners.

Fail to Score in Third
The Red and Blue scored in every quarter but the third. Their first marker came after a sustained drive from the 50-yard line early in the first quarter. Zorn and DePaschal alternated carrying the ball to the 23. From here Zorn took the pigskin and slithered off right tackle to go over the goal line standing up. DePaschal's plunge for the extra point failed.

The second tally was a result of the blocked kick mentioned earlier. DePaschal scored the extra point on a plunge.

Third marker came in the fourth quarter after DePaschal blocked and recovered a Salem punt on the Salem 19. Zorn took the ball and dashed through center to the ten yard line where he fumbled but DePaschal recovered it on the five. Guappone and Ruffing effectively blocked two attempts to crash the line but Zorn plunged across on the third attempt. DePaschal's line buck for the extra point failed.

The final Niles touchdown came toward the close of the game as Hubbard cut across left tackle on the thirty yard line to go over the goal line standing up. DePaschal's plunge for the extra point failed. The Salem gridders meet Alliance next week. If they learn to tackle in the meantime it might be a fair show.

BOWLING RESULTS

The Ford V-8's kept their first place standing in the Grate Ladies league last night but dropped one game, their second of the season, to the Hi Ho's of Leontia. They came mighty close, too, to losing another after locking in a tie at 750 for the first game. They rallied to win this one in a roll-off, however, but dropped the second and then won the third.

Haldi's moved out of a second place three-way tie with Schwartz's and the Eagles No. 1 by sweeping three games from the Salem China Billet to move into second place. Schwartz's moved into third by taking two from the Eagles No. 2, dropping them to fifth.

Kaufman's handed the Eagles No. 1 a triple loss, the Coy Buicks took two from the Trades Class, and the AAA handed Endres-Gross a double defeat in other ladies league games.

Federal League
Laying down a 642 total (230, 167-245), Mervin Thomas led the way last night as Meissner's took two games from Brownie's Amocos to maintain second place in the Federal league. Other high scores in the contest were Flick's 229 for the losers and Vessey's 222 Meissner's.

The Eagles won two from the Beeler Sohions to stay in first while the K. of C. handed the Sanitary Foremen a three-game loss.

| EAST LIVERPOOL FALLS TO QUAKER GRIDDERS, 19-14 |

Well—not exactly. It took a Jayvee squad to do it, but a Salem football team finally beat East Liverpool. Playing here in an after-school game Thursday, a tremendously improved bunch of youngsters ran and passed to victory over a powerfully staffed Pottery City eleven, 19-14.

Organized late, the Salem squad has shown consistent improvement in games this year. After just one week of practice they played a tough Warren aggregation and have since played teams ranging up to the Salineville varsity.

The aggregation is coached by Howard Lehwald and Joe Kelley.

50,000 READY FOR BATTLE BETWEEN PITT AND BUCKS

Wet Turf Gives Panthers Advantage In Contest With Ohio State

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1. — Ohio State was the favorite but a revamped lineup gave the 50,000 spectators hopes that the Pittsburgh Panthers would win their first football game of the season today. The turf was soggy from recent rains.

"I don't like this weather. Anything can happen on a slippery gridiron," said Coach Paul E. Brown who was seeking the first victory of an Ohio State grid team in the steel city.

"Neither do I," echoed Coach Charles Bowser of Pitt. "We're badly handicapped as it is and a wet field will make our load twice as heavy."

Pittsburgh has lost to Purdue, Michigan, Minnesota and Duke this year while Ohio has defeated Missouri and Southern California and lost to Northwestern.

Ohio may have to play without its plugging fullback, Jack Graf, who missed getting into the Northwestern game because of injuries. Although listed as a starter he was expected to give way to Dick Burgett.

Neither team had a distinct weight advantage, both lines averaging around 198 and the backfields about 185.

Massillon Wallops Warren High, 21-0

WARREN, Nov. 1. — Massillon High was on the first leg of another victory string today with a 21-0 triumph over the Warren Harding Presidents tucked under the belt.

The mighty Tigers, who were held to a 6 to 6 tie by Mansfield last week after winning 38 consecutive games, had little trouble with the Presidents here last night. Mod handicapped both teams, and rain drenched 10,000 spectators.

Joe Demango, veteran left end, provided the Tigers with two scoring chances. In the first period he blocked Scarpaci's punt on the Warren 30. Paulik recovered the ball in the end zone for six points.

Holt added another by plunging. In the second period the Tigers were deep in their own territory. Captain "Pokey" Blunt took the ball around his right end, dodged, whirled, and splashed 80 yards for the second tally.

Warren made its lone threat late in this period when the Presidents recovered a fumble on the Massillon eight, but they lost the ball on downs.

Demango set up the third touchdown for Massillon by blocking his second punt of the evening. Holt smothered the ball on the Warren 14. Blunt made a first down, and Graber went over. Holt plunged for the conversion.

Ray Robinson Wins From Fritzie Zivic In Ten-Round Tilt

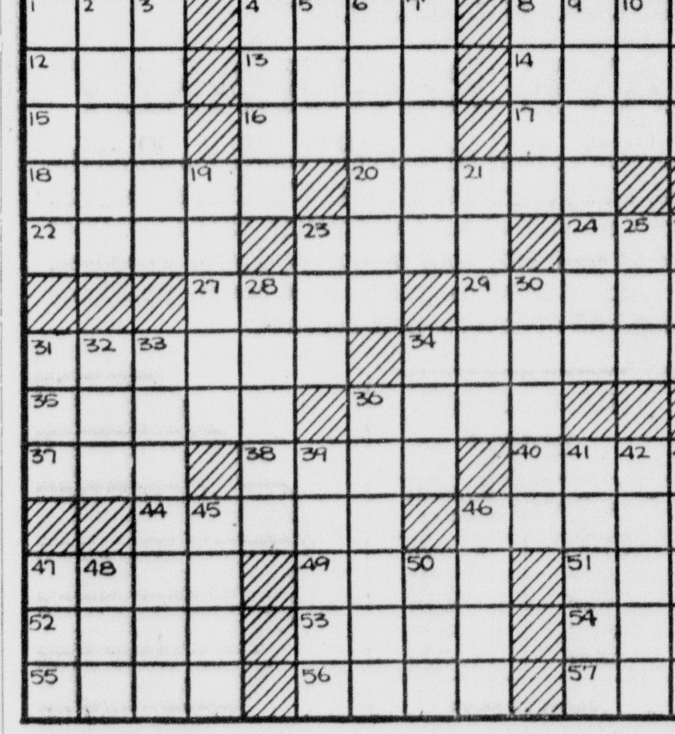

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Starved for a good scrap, the fans banked Madison Square Garden five-deep last night to see Ray Robinson, a tall, scared-looking Negro boy, win his 26th straight professional victory at the expense of Fritzie Zivic.

Robinson is about the most promising youngster to come along since Joe Louis. He spotted Zivic better than six pounds—139½ to 145½—and came on to win the last three rounds of a 10 rounder and beat his veteran opponent.

There wasn't a knockdown. Neither fighter was staggered nor seriously hurt. They simply fought for 10 rounds—hard and constantly. At the end there was no complaint from the overflow crowd of 20,551. It had seen a battle.

6 ASK PLACES ON LEETONIA BOARD

School Contest Is Principal
Feature of Tuesday
Balloting

and bus lines between Leetonia and Salem.

Candidates for board of public affairs are:

John Hall, Sr., trucker, Joseph Hunt, retired railway employee, and W. J. Kegelmeyer, watchman at the Crescent Machine Co.

Mr. Kegelmeyer is board chairman and has been a board member since 1936. Mr. Hunt is filling the unexpired term of the late Frank Whitacre.

Sek School Board Places

Candidates for three vacancies on the Leetonia board of education are:

Russell L. Miller, former farmer, now employed in Pennsylvania. He is a political newcomer.

Charles L. Steits, shipping clerk in the National Sanitary plant in Salem, first try in the political field. He resides on the Lisbon-Leetonia rd.

M. E. Sullivan, also first venture at campaigning. He is a molder at the Quaker City Foundry, Salem.

Mabel L. Shive, housewife, incumbent, seeking second term.

C. Porter Aiken, of Franklin Square, heads the Adult Education program in Columbiana county. It is his initial political venture.

E. W. Berg of Washingtonville, former automobile dealer, in politics for the first time.

Quits Defense Post

John D. Biggers

President Roosevelt has granted a "leave of absence" from government service to John D. Biggers, Toledo glass company executive, who has spent 17 months in a defense administration as a $1-a-year man. Biggers recently returned from a London trip as special minister in charge of expediting lend-lease supplies and previously held a key post in the Office of Production Management.

The Donets coal basin is often called the "Soviet Pennsylvania."

Here and There -- About Town

Reunion In Los Angeles

Four former Salem residents held a reunion dinner recently in the Los Angeles Biltmore hotel. An account of the dinner, which was attended by J. Paul Huxley of Youngstown, Perry Cessna, Cal Mickle and J. L. Hole of Los Angeles, is written by the latter to friends here. He explains the four had not been together since 1895, although they were all born and spent their early years here.

A guest at the reunion was Mr. Cessna's son, Forrest, and, after the dinner, Mrs. Huxley and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Thomas of Youngstown. Mr. Hole recalls that the first money he earned was by carrying papers for The News.

Arrested By Patrol

Clare Wiser, 31, of Ravenna, arrested last night by State Patrolmen C. W. Cale and Bernard Hopkins on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated, was fined $100 and costs this morning by Mayor Norman Phillips.

Carl R. Summer, 33, of Bentleyville, Pa., arrested by the patrol on a charge of speeding, was fined $25 and costs by the mayor.

John J. Zines, of 673 E. Second st., charged by the patrol with reckless driving, was fined $10 and costs.

Joins Marine Reserves

Dan Ugran of 312 W. Fifth st. has enlisted in the Marine Corps Reserves and has been assigned to the Marine training center, Parris Island, S. C.

Pvt. Ugran is a graduate of Salem High school and attended Kent State university for one year. Prior to his enlistment, he was employed by the Mullins Mfg. Corp. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ugran of Youngstown.

W. C. T. U. To Meet

The W. C. T. U. will meet at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. William Pickens on W. State st. Mrs. William Hawkins, a member of the union here, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Berlin Center W. C. T. U. recently. Her subject was "The Tasks That We May Do."

Class Officers Elected

Officers for the year were named recently by the High school class of the Baptist Sunday school. They are: President, William Sprout; vice president, Robert Miller; secretary-treasurer, Jeanette Hutchison.

Officers will hold a meeting soon to arrange for class activities.

W. R. C. Plans Service

Women's Relief Corps will conduct a service for Miss Nora Nease, who died last night at Salem City hospital, at the home, 427 E. Second st., Monday afternoon, prior to the funeral service. Members are asked to meet at the K. of P. hall at 1:30 p. m.

Hospital Notes

Mrs. Stephen Ault of Western Reserve rd., Poland, has entered Salem City hospital for surgical treatment.

Norman Miller of R. D. 4, Salem, has been admitted to Salem City hospital for medical treatment.

Collision Reported

H. C. Fischer of 956 S. Lundy ave. reported to police that his automobile and another licensed SE-21 were involved in a collision at the intersection of E. State st. and Lincoln ave. at 12:45 p. m. Friday.

Two Departments Meet

The primary department of the Christian church Sunday school will meet with the junior department in the Sunday school rooms at the church school hour tomorrow.

Phalanx Meets Sunday

Dangerous Voyage Ahead—Arms Cargo for Russia

Painted a battleship gray, the freighter Mount Evans is being put into shape for early departure to Russia with a cargo of arms and other war supplies. Workmen are installing new armor plate and depth bomb racks. The ship will carry guns. It will fly the American flag.

LIGHT BALLOT IS SEEN ON TUESDAY

Candidates Winding Up
One of City's Quietest
Campaigns

Treasurer: James S. Gregg, newspaper correspondent.

Councilman-at-large: Samuel Krauss, who was a member of council seven years ago, and Sidney Haimes, artist, who has never held a public office.

First ward: H. E. Scullion, Mullins Co. employee.

Second ward: No candidate.

Third ward: Charles Cavanaugh, one-time councilman and former member of the county election board.

Fourth ward: Fred W. (Ike) Koenreich, incumbent, employed at the Mullins plant.

The Democrats have no solicitor candidate.

Another contest which is expected to attract considerable interest is the three-way race for two seats on the board of education. Two terms expiring are those of James H. Wilson, head of the Salem Tool Co., and Postmaster A. E. Beardmore. The third school board candidate is George Baillie, of the Quaker City foundry.

Levy For Sewers

Salem also votes on a one-mill levy for sewer improvements, the vital need of which has been pointed out by city officials from time to time. The levy, to run for two years, will finance the city's portion of expense in the $140,000 storm water sewer project which is designed to eliminate flood conditions which beset various sections of the city during heavy rainstorms.

The first section of the large storm water sewer outlet on S. Broadway is practically complete, but funds are needed to insure the completion of the second half and auxiliary lines. The federal government has offered to spend $2 for every $1 which the city furnished for the job.

City councilmen decided to place the levy before the Salem voters again because it lost by only a handful of votes at the primary. A 65 per cent majority vote is needed for passage.

Perry township voters will decide a contest for board of trustees with three candidates in the field for the two posts which are vacant at this time. They are R. Clayton Eckstein, president of the board, P. J. Dean, who has been unable to campaign due to illness, and Galen H. Greenstein, who has never held public office.

Salem voters also will mark a ballot on the county's two-mill operating levy, designed to finance the care and maintenance of inmates of the county infirmary.

Fairmount childrens home, tuberculosis treatment, soldiers' relief, blind pensions, aid to dependent children and crippled children.

More Plead Guilty

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1—Twenty-one more men—making a total of 56—have pleaded guilty to indictments returned by a grand jury investigating gambling in Franklin county. Others indicted on gaming counts were expected to enter pleas before Judge Robert P. Duncan imposes sentences Wednesday.

Where 14 Die

This map shows where a Northwest Airlines plane en route from Chicago to Seattle crashed and burned near Moorhead, Minn., killing 14 of the 15 persons aboard. The lone survivor was the pilot, Clarence Bates of Minneapolis.

DEATHS

MISS NORA NEASE

Miss Nora Nease, 57, of 427 E. Second st., died of pneumonia Friday night in Salem City hospital. She was stricken a week ago.

Born here Sept. 15, 1884, she was the daughter of Stanton and Becky Guinn Nease.

Miss Nease was a member of the Women's Relief Corps and had worked at the Mullins plant and at the old nail mill. She had lived in Salem all her life.

The only survivor is a cousin, J. R. Gardner of Akron.

The funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the late home in charge of Rev. A. B. Starbuck, pastor of the Friends church. Burial will be in Hope cemetery. The W. R. C. will have charge of a short service.

The body will be taken to the home Sunday afternoon where friends may call.

MRS. IRENE H. RUDISILL

Mrs. Irene H. Rudisill, 94, died at her home on the Damascus rd. at 7:50 a. m. today following a week's illness of complications.

The daughter of John C. and Maria Frederick Pike, she was born near Guilford Oct. 27, 1847, and lived in the vicinity all her life. She was the last of her immediate family. Mrs. Rudisill, whose husband, William, a Civil war veteran, died 41 years ago, had made her home on the Damascus rd. since 1913.

She is survived by one son, J. C. Rudisill, at home.

Funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Arbuckle-Peace funeral home, in charge of Rev. G. D. Keister. Burial will be in Grandview cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday evening.

MRS. JACOB E. MUSSER

Mrs. Jacob E. Musser, 67, formerly of New Waterford, died at 12:45 a. m. today at her home, 176 W. Second st.

Born Aug. 16, 1874, in Petersburg, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rvek, she had lived here the last few months. She was a member of the New Waterford Lutheran church.

Besides her husband, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Karl Bonfert, of Salem; two sisters, Mrs. Emma Beight and Mrs. Curtis Burkey of Petersburg; and one brother, Harvey Rvek, of East Palestine.

Funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the New Waterford Lutheran church, in charge of the pastor, Rev. C. J. Sutorius. Burial will be in the Petersburg cemetery. The body was removed to the Warrick funeral home, where friends may call from 7 to 9 p. m. Sunday.

Transient Released

FINDLAY, Nov. 1—Lack of evidence to link a transient with the 1939 wreck of the Southern Pacific's steamliner, City of San Francisco, brought the man's release after a month in jail here. Sheriff Lyle Harvitt said the suspect, who admitted throwing a switch at Upper Sandusky a year ago in a futile attempt to wreck a train, gave railroad detectives only incoherent replies to questions about the Nevada wreck in which 24 were killed.
